ENGLISH FOR ENVIRONMENTAL COMMUNICATION SKILLS is one of the class-room course book editions and it focuses on the interaction of humanity with nature, land, and space. The book consists of writings and reviews like C.Rajagopalachari – Tree Speaks, C.V.Raman – Water-The Elixir of Life, William and Stella Nida – The Story of the Sea, A.K. Ramanujan – The River, Sarojini Naidu – The Coromandel Fishers, William Brighty Rands – Great, Wide, Beautiful, Wonderful World, and Ben Lerwill – Climate Rebels. And it is hoped that all these works would create a groundbreaking innovative environmental consciousness in a language classroom besides improving language proficiency. The Faculty of Environmental Studies and English Language Teaching, an interdisciplinary venture, will sensitize current environmental issues from the classroom to public space. This book along with editor and readers will evolve itself as there is continuous change in global warming.
